

THE HEALTHY CONVENIENCE STORE PROJECT

A Southern Illinois Healthy Convenience Store (SIHCS) is a convenience or small grocery store that promotes the sale of healthy foods such as fresh produce, low-fat dairy, and whole grains.

The project's aim is to improve health and prevent obesity and chronic disease in rural communities through culturally appropriate, store-based interventions.

This toolkit is designed to assist local health departments/organizers working with convenience stores to implement a healthy foods retail initiative.

The materials available on this site focus on the project's implementation and ongoing management,
